

CREATE AND INNOVATE

WITH ON-TREND HERBS & SPICES

READY TO BE INCLUDED IN YOUR NEXT TEA BLEND OR CAFÉ MENU

REISHI

A mushroom with adaptogenic properties, becoming a popular coffee replacement or additive. Can promote focus without the caffeine jitters.

HIBISCUS

A delicious and sweet, tart taste—packed with vitamin C and B. Can be brewed as an herbal tea or a complementary flavor when blended with other herbs and green teas.

ELDERBERRY

Full of antioxidants and vitamins that support immunity. Can be added to tea blends, pastries, syrups, jams and the powdered version in smoothies.

CHAMOMILE

Promotes calm feelings with notes of apple. Pairs well with a variety of herbs and teas—blends nicely with citrusy, floral or mint-flavored herbs.

KAVA KAVA ROOT

Known as the peace plant by pacific islanders for its calming effect on the nervous system. Can be sour, so it's best when mixed with other tasty herbs or caffeinated teas.

According to Nielsen data, the tea and coffee industry has gotten a serious bump in sales* over the last couple of years. One way to keep the upward trend going is through product and flavor innovation. Consumers are seeking exciting fusions for both taste and wellness, which is where herbs come in. There is a vast world of plants with different flavors, colors, and functions to explore.
